History

Guangzhou, previously known as Canton is the third largest city in China. It is the political, economic, sci-tech, educational and cultural hub of southern China. It is located in south-central Guangdong Province, north of the Pearl River Delta. It lies close to the South China Sea, Hong Kong and Macau. It is also an important national trading center, covering an area of 16,000 square kilometers.

Guangzhou holds the famous and world's biggest trade fair every year – China Import and Export Fair, commonly known as Canton Fair, was founded in the spring of 1957, held in Guangzhou in spring and autumn every year, so far, more than 50 years of history, is currently the longest history, the highest level, the largest and most complete varieties, visiting traders largest turnover best comprehensive international trade event.

With a history of 2,000 years, Guangzhou was the capital of three dynasties: Nan Yue (South Yue) (203B.C-111B.C), Nan Han (South Han) (917A.D-971A.D) and Nanming (South Ming) (1644-1662). After a history of over 2000 years of Chinese culture influenced by many foreign cultures, Guangzhou boasts its unique Lingnan culture (岭南文化), which was reflected in many aspect of modern Guangzhou, such as Lingnan painting (岭南画派), Lingnan architecture (岭南建筑), Lingnan gardens (岭南园林), Guangdong music (粤剧), Cantonese cuisine(粤菜), Cantonese language (粤语).

Guangzhou was also part of the so called "Maritime Silk Road" that linked southern China with India, South-East Asia, the Middle East, and Africa. Furthermore, it was the only port open to the outside world under the closed-door policy of the Qing Dynasty (1644 - 1911), dominating the foreign trade of the whole country.

Guangzhou was one of the original cities of China's modern revolution. It has witnessed many revolutionary uprisings, the establishment of Huangpu Military Academy and Chairman Mao Zedong's National Institute of Peasant Movement.

Climate

Guangzhou weather is generally warm and humid all year round without a clear division of seasons. With a humid subtropical monsoon climate, Guangzhou is characterized by warm winters, hot summers. The average year-round temperature is 23 °C. August is the hottest month, with an average temperature of 30 °C, but with a high of up to 40 °C in the day and 28 °C at night. January is the coldest month, with an average of 13 °C, although it can drop to around 0 °C.

The weather is generally quite humid (often around 80-90% or more) so the heat can feel more oppressive, and the cold more pervasive. The rainy season falls between April and August. Average annual rainfall is 1,720 mm, and an umbrella is a must.

Peak and Off season

Peak season: (December - February), (September - November)

Off season: (July - August), (March - May)

Best Season

Spring

Spring is from March to May. It is the start of the rainy season with rainfall mostly in April and May. Prepare a sweater in March and light clothes for this season. Every year the Canton Fair is held in Guangzhou from April to May.

Summer

Summer is from June to early October. It is long, scorching and wet. The hottest months are July and August, with the highest temperatures in the mid 30 °C (around 95 °F). The average summer temperature is 29 °C (84 °F). There are occasional typhoons and frequent afternoon thunderstorms, so it is recommended to bring an umbrella. For summer in Guangzhou, wear summer clothes such as shorts, shirts and skirts, and also sun protection such as hats, sunglasses and sun block. Besides drinking lots of water, you can also try drinking herbal tea, which is very popular among local people.

Autumn

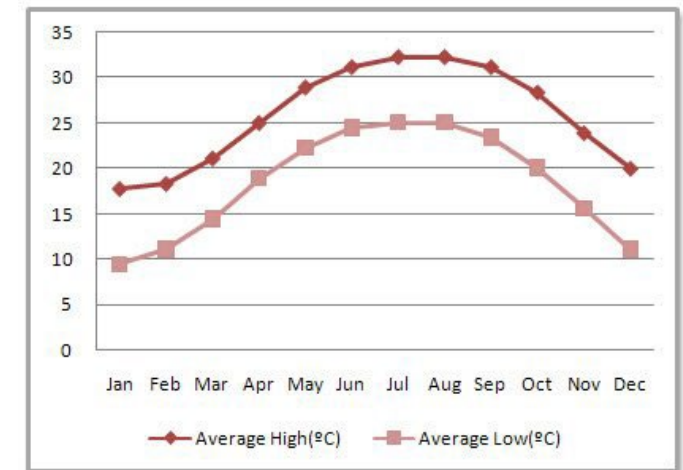

Autumn is from mid October to early December. It is very short, mostly pleasant, with sunny and relatively cooler weather, and little rain. This is one of the best times of the year for traveling in

And remember, no matter where you go, there you are. -- Confucius

Guangzhou. The average low and high temperatures are respectively 20 °C (68 °F) and 28 °C (83 °F) in October, 16 °C (60 °F) and 24 °C (75 °F) in November, and 11 °C (52 °F) and 20 °C (68 °F) in December. A light sweater and a coat is enough at the coolest of times, but a long-sleeve shirt is enough when it is warmer during the day.

Winter

Winter is short, from late December to February. The weather is moderate, cool and dry. It is one of the best times of the year for visiting Guangzhou. Unlike cities in North China, Guangzhou in winter is a sea of flowers. The average low and high temperature is 9 °C (49 °F) and 18 °C (64 °F) in January, and 11 °C (52 °F) and 18 °C (65 °F) in February. Long trousers, a sweater and sometimes a coat are enough for the winter in Guangzhou.

Guangxiao Temple, also known as Bright Filial Piety Temple, is a magnificent and ancient temple, built as the mansion for Prince Zhao Jiande of the Nanyue Kingdom during the Western Han Dynasty (206BC - 24AD). One of the oldest temple in Guangzhou, the Bright Filial Piety Temple located on Guangxiao Road. The Temple was first built by an Indian monk during the Eastern Jin dynasty (317- 420) and the present temple, occupying an area of 31000 square meters, was rebuilt in the Qing Dynasty (1644 - 1911). The Sixth Ancestor Hall in the temple was built in memory of Huineng, the sixth master of the Zen Sect of Buddhism, who was also the most influential monk in the history of Chinese Buddhism. There is also a pagoda where Huineng's hair was buried. Other ancient structures in the temple include Sakyamuni Hall, Samgharama Hall, the King of Heaven Hall, and two iron towers.

EATING

Guangzhou is honored as "the paradise of food" in China. Cantonese food (Yue Cai) is served everywhere in the city. It is one of the eight cuisines in China. Other cuisines like Sichuan Cuisine, Hunan cuisine, Shandong Cuisine can also easily be found in Guangzhou.

What to eat

Dimsum 点心 (Dian xin)

Dim sum is the most well-known Cantonese dish around the world. A straightforward dish generally composed of steamed or fried dumplings, it's served as a snack or main course in small steamer baskets or on little plates. A staple of Cantonese food that stretches back thousands of years, the varieties of available dim sum are too many to list, and the dish is so ubiquitous that the simple act of "drinking tea" always includes it.

He who accounts all things easy will have many difficulties. -- Lao Tzu

Shuang Pi Nai 双皮奶 (Double layered milk)

A creamy custard, shuang pi nai is a simple and satisfying sweet dish that calls to mind pudding or flan. Made from water buffalo milk, sugar, and egg whites, this dish is also sometimes topped with lotus seeds, raisins, or jequirity, a popular red bean.

Kao Ru Zhu 烤乳猪 (Roasted Suckling Pig)

Roasted whole suckling pig has been a delicacy here for more than 1,400 years. Whether it's cooked over a low fire to preserve the skin's smoothness or roasted over a large fire so the skin melts, kao ru zhu is a treasured part of Cantonese cuisine and culture that is one of Guangzhou's most prized offerings.

Yum Cha 饮茶 (Drink tea)

Yum cha is a Cantonese-style morning or afternoon tea that includes the eating of dim sum and other baked goods. When you're in Guangzhou, be sure to make it a point to stop in at the local tea houses regularly for yum cha. Reminiscent of British tea (linktk), it serves the same purpose and will, therefore, help ensure you can keep your energy up throughout a day filled with sightseeing.

Fotiao Qiang 佛跳墙

Fotiao Qiang is literally translated as Buddha Jumps Over the Wall, it is a soup of Cantonese and Fujian cuisine. Chinese delicacy known for its rich taste, usage of various high-quality ingredients and special manner of cooking.

Baiqie Ji 白切鸡 (White cut chicken)

This is one of the most popular Cantonese dishes. It is lightly flavored to allow one to taste the true chicken meat. In Chinese New Year, a whole chicken will be served at the family dinner, including the head and feet. It is said that the white meat symbolizes purity and the whole one symbolizes unity. The traditional way to eat chicken is to take a dip with a tiny amount of sauce which makes it taste delicious.

Yuntun Mian 云吞面 (Wonton Noodles)

Wonton Noodles, known as Yuntun Mian in Guangzhou, served with crisp noodles, tender wonton fillings and a fragrant soup, are one of the favorite small dishes of Guangzhou. The soup is boiled with shrimps, dried sole, and fine pork bones. Wonton noodle soup is one of the few dishes set very high standards for, almost to the point of obsession. Because of cravings for an ideal bowl of wonton noodle soup (and seeing my relatives).The wonton is made with fresh pork, shelled shrimps and eggs, and cooked in a thin rice dough wrapper. After cooking, the wonton turns semi-transparent, clear and tempting; hence, its nickname of "glassy wonton".

Cantonese Opera (Yue Ju) 粤剧

This style of opera is popular in Guangdong, Guangxi, Hong Kong and Macau. The dialogue and singing is in Cantonese. The voices rise and fall in ever changing rhymes, and the melodies are harmonious and graceful. The people of Guangdong Province and large parts of Guangxi Province were mainly Cantonese speaking people. Cantonese is a language that is very different than Mandarin. Since AD 1522 to 1566, it has spread in Guangdong. It is a performing art collecting singing, reading, playing, music played by musicians, drama stage and costumes, abstract body, etc.

You can enjoy Cantonese opera at Guangzhou Cantonese Opera Theater, Huang Huagang Theatre or Guangzhou Opera House. But the operas are all in Chinese. It may be a little hard for foreigners to understand.

How to search for places?

With phone data or connection to WiFi, a Google Map should be useful in searching for sights, ATMs, hospitals, supermarkets, or wherever you want to go in Beijing. However, due to the limitation of Chinese internet, downloading a VPN in your phone is necessary to avoid the firewall.

Banks

Here are several most well-known banks in China:
 中国银行 BOC (Bank of China)
 中国建设银行 CCB (China Construction Bank)
 中国农业银行 ABC (Agricultural Bank of China)
 中国工商银行 ICBC (Industrial and Commercial Bank of China)
 招商银行 CMB (China Merchants Bank Ltd.)

Important

Wherever you go, remember to take your passport with you. Whether a hospital or bank, at railway station or police station, you will need your passport.
